

Open Call for Impact Case Studies:

Demonstrate your mark

Showcasing the Societal Impact of South African Universities

Universities South Africa (USAf) is excited to invite public higher education institutions to participate in our initiative to highlight and celebrate the remarkable societal impact of South African universities. As part of our ongoing commitment to showcasing the valuable contributions of higher education institutions to South African society, we are calling for the submission of one, two, or three of your best impact case studies.

Objective: The primary goal of this initiative is to illustrate the profound positive influence that South African universities have on addressing societal challenges. By sharing impactful case studies, we aim to inspire and inform the public, stakeholders, and the global community about the valuable contributions that universities make towards creating positive change.

Guidelines: We invite your university to submit up to three of your most compelling impact case studies that demonstrate your institution's commitment to addressing and solving societal challenges. Each case study should showcase a specific initiative, project, or program that has had a notable positive impact on society. Download the guidelines and submission template

Using the provided template, limit each case study to a maximum of 1,500 words, providing a comprehensive yet concise overview of the initiative, project team, and funder. Include relevant visuals such as images, infographics, and videos to enhance the understanding of the impact achieved. Size of media files should not exceed 30MB.

Submission Deadline: Please submit your university's three impact case studies to USAf by Friday 14 June 2024 via email at impact@usaf.ac.za Late submissions will not be considered.

Review and Selection Process: A panel of experts will review the submissions based on the clarity of impact, innovation, and significance to societal challenges. The selected case studies will be featured and credited on the USAf website, providing a platform for your institution to showcase its positive contributions. We look forward to your submission. Enquiries: nompumelelo@usaf.ac.za.